Nicki Minaj entangled in $30 million wig dispute

Contributor/bali

above her head and the demon Durga at the foot of Sinta’s discovery: Wanggong is shown lying on his coach while his wife, who also has mother, combs his hair and ropes discovering the scar made by the lady, makes them to face as an inhuman mother...

Maria von Trapp, 99, dies in Vermont

STORY: Maria von Trapp, the last surviving member and second-oldest daughter of the married couple who escape from Nazi-occupied Austria won the Iowa for The Sound of Music, has died. She was 99

Van Trapp died at her home in Vermont on Saturday, according to his father-in-law, the last surviving member of the famous family, who said that "we were a happy family."

"She was a lovely woman who was one of the four happy young people," he said. "There wasn’t a mean or miserable bone in her body."

Van Trapp, who was born in 1925, was the last surviving member of the seven original Trapp Family, Van Trapp's father, the last surviving member of the seven original Trapp Family, was a member of the family and wrote the music for the family's hit song, "The Sound of Music." He was also the father of the family's two eldest daughters, Agatha and Barbara.

The Trapp family was a musical group that started in Austria in 1918 and later moved to the United States. The family's music was inspired by the family's love for music and their desire to escape the Nazi regime in Austria.

The family's music was first recorded in the late 1920s and early 1930s, and their music was later used in the movie "The Sound of Music." The family's music has been covered by many artists, including the British band Queen, who recorded a version of "The Sound of Music" in the 1980s.

The Trapp family's music has been praised for its beauty and its ability to inspire joy and happiness. The family's music has also been used in various contexts, including in films and on television.

For more pictures, please see the story above.